

STATE

Magoffin County officials convicted in vote-buying scheme

By Bill Estep

bestep@herald-leader.com

AUGUST 12, 2016 11:00 PM, UPDATED AUGUST 13, 2016 05:45 PM

Listen to this article now

05:05

Powered by Trinity Audio

Federal jurors have convicted two Magoffin County officials in a vote-fraud scheme in which the judge-executive also was implicated.

The jury returned verdicts late Friday against Magistrate Gary “Rooster” Risner and

ACCEPT COOKIES

We use cookies and similar technologies. By continuing to use this website, you consent to our Terms of Service and our Privacy Policy.

The jury also convicted Tami Jo Risner, Risner's ex-wife, but acquitted Mason Daniels, who works as a farrier.

The four were charged with conspiring to buy votes in 2014 for a slate of candidates including county Judge-Executive Charles "Doc" Hardin, Risner and Renee Shepherd.

A fifth person, Scotty L. McCarty, was initially charged with the others in the alleged conspiracy but pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor vote-buying charge and testified against them.

Today's top headlines

Sign up for the PM Newsletter and get the day's biggest stories in your inbox.

SIGN UP

This site is protected by reCAPTCHA and the Google Privacy Policy and Terms of Service apply.

McCarty testified he took part in vote fraud with Hardin, Risner and Larry Shepherd in several elections, working as a precinct officer at Carty Branch to corrupt elections from the inside.

In one election, for instance, he added 60 votes to the total for a state representative candidate, and Risner signed names to the precinct log of people who hadn't showed up to cover the extra votes, McCarty said.

McCarty testified Risner told him Hardin put in $30,000 to buy votes in 2010, while Larry and Renee Shepherd put in $10,000 and Risner contributed $2,000.

Prosecutors also presented testimony from several people who said various members of the conspiracy paid them $50 in 2014 to vote for the right slate.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ken Taylor told jurors that in the 2014 elections, Risner handled the money for the conspiracy, while Tami Risner and Daniels recruited vote-sellers and Shepherd used his position to further the scheme.

Local news has never been more important

Subscribe for unlimited digital access to the news that matters to your community.

#READLOCAL

Hardin, a Democrat serving his fourth term who also works as a physician, was not charged in the case and has consistently denied being involved in vote fraud.

The jury convicted Risner, his ex-wife and Shepherd on one conspiracy charge. Jurors also convicted Risner on seven charges of vote-buying and his ex-wife on two vote-buying counts.

Shepherd's attorney, Jason Nemes, said Shepherd will appeal.

"We don't think the evidence supports the verdict," he said.

Attorneys for Gary and Tami Jo Risner also said appeals are likely.

Defense attorneys argued McCarty and other prosecution witnesses were unreliable. Jurors obviously believed McCarty, however, said Risner's attorney, Michael Curtis.

Daniels' attorney, Joseph Lane, said Daniels' straightforward testimony in his own defense helped him.

"I thought this was a great verdict for Mason," Lane said.

U.S. District Judge Danny C. Reeves scheduled sentencing for the three for Dec. 1. The conspiracy and vote-buying charges each carry a maximum sentence of five years.

There have been allegations of fraud in the last several local elections in Magoffin County.

Randy Salyer, a close ally of Hardin's, was convicted of buying votes in the 2010 general election and sentenced to 21 months in prison. After he was released, Hardin hired Salyer as an assistant, giving him "a reward for not testifying against Hardin" about vote fraud, Taylor said in a court document.

In the May 2014 primary, former county Clerk H.B. Arnett beat Hardin by three votes on Election Day, then lost a vote in a recount while Hardin picked up five votes, making him the winner by three votes.

ACCEPT COOKIES

We use cookies and similar technologies. By continuing to use this website, you consent to our Terms of Service and our Privacy Policy.

In the fall race in 2014, Republican challenger John Montgomery, who owns a small business, beat Hardin by a comfortable margin in votes cast on Election Day.

However, Hardin won far more absentee ballots and beat Montgomery by 28 votes overall.

Tressa Whittington, an accountant with the FBI, testified at the trial that Hardin got 69 percent of the votes cast by absentee ballot in the 2014 general election, and that 24 percent of his overall vote total came from absentees, compared to 11 percent for Montgomery.

Risner got 76 percent of the absentee votes cast in his race against challenger Brandon “Chickenwing” Minix, Whittington said.

The suggestion was that fraud involving absentee voting helped Hardin and Risner.

After the 2014 race, Montgomery filed a lawsuit alleging Hardin took part in vote fraud and that the local election board violated a number of election rules.

Circuit Judge John David Preston ruled in February 2015 that the election was tainted by a range of problems, including precinct officers improperly helping people vote, and concluded that county workers illegally spread gravel on some private driveways shortly before the election.

Preston said there were so many problems there was no way to say whether either candidate won fairly, and vacated the office.

A state Court of Appeals panel upheld that ruling. Hardin and the county election

KENTUCKY

Winning filly: Swiss Skydiver beats Authentic in Preakness

OCTOBER 04, 2020 3:30 AM

CORONAVIRUS

Kentucky hits grim milestone: Highest one-day total of new COVID-19 cases

UPDATED OCTOBER 03, 2020 09:26 PM

OCTOBER 03, 2020 5:14 PM

BUSINESS

Kentucky newspaper says city violated open meetings law

OCTOBER 03, 2020 3:36 PM

HEALTH & MEDICINE

Garden grows memories after miscarriages

OCTOBER 03, 2020 12:05 PM

SPONSORED CONTENT

If You Have More Than $1,000 in the Bank, Make These 4 Moves ASAP

BY THE PENNY HOARDER

Take Us With You

Real-time updates and all local stories you want right in the palm of your hand.

 LEXINGTON HERALD LEADER APP →

VIEW NEWSLETTERS →

SUBSCRIPTIONS

- Start a Subscription
- Customer Service
- eEdition
- Vacation Hold
- Pay Your Bill

Don Estep, 000-070-4033, @donestep1

FROM OUR ADVERTISING PARTNERS

 COMMENTS

HEALTH & MEDICINE

READ NEXT

Online company finds success selling custom smokers

BY DON WILKINS, MESSENGER-INQUIRER THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
OCTOBER 04, 2020 01:38 PM

When COVID-19 hit in mid-March and forced people to pause their lives, Nathan Rhodes and Jeremy Murphy thought their Whitesville-based company Sling 'N' Steel Custom Smokers ... well ... might just go up in smoke.

Making it more concerning, Rhodes and Murphy, both 39 years old, had left their full-time jobs at Owensboro-based Unique Granite & Marble in January to concentrate on their online retail custom smoker business, which they had started together seven years earlier as a side venture.

KEEP READING →

TRENDING STORIES

Kentucky hits grim milestone: Highest one-day total of new COVID-19 cases

UPDATED OCTOBER 03, 2020 09:26 PM

Live updates from Kentucky vs. Ole Miss college football

UPDATED 9 HOURS 20 MINUTES AGO

Stoops stands by A.J. Rose after early celebration. But ... 'That's not acceptable.'

UPDATED 9 HOURS 20 MINUTES AGO

Three takeaways from Kentucky football's overtime loss to Ole Miss

UPDATED 11 HOURS 26 MINUTES AGO

UK football fights back but falls to Mississippi in OT in home opener

UPDATED 9 HOURS 20 MINUTES AGO

Local news has never been more important

#ReadLocal

Subscribe for unlimited digital access to the news that matters to your community.

#READLOCAL

HEALTH & MEDICINE

Kentucky reports

ACCEPT COOKIES

We use cookies and similar technologies. By continuing to use this website, you consent to our Terms of Service and our Privacy Policy.

Newsletters

News in Education

Archives

ADVERTISING

Contact Advertising

Place a Classified Ad

Digital Solutions

Media Kit

COPYRIGHT

PRIVACY POLICY

TERMS OF SERVICE

ACCEPT COOKIES

We use cookies and similar technologies. By continuing to use this website, you consent to our Terms of Service and our Privacy Policy.