ECONOMIC FREEDOM STATUS:
MOSTLY FREE

Australia's economic freedom score is 76.2, making its economy the 13th freest in the 2024 Index of Economic Freedom. Its rating has increased by 1.4 points from last year, and Australia is ranked 4th out of 39 countries in the Asia-Pacific region. The country's economic freedom score is higher than the world and regional averages. Australia's economy is considered "mostly free" according to the 2024 Index.

The competitive Australian economy benefits from a strong commitment to open-market policies that facilitate global trade and investment. The foundations of economic freedom are strong and supported by the widely respected rule of law. Transparent and efficient regulations are generally applied evenly and encourage dynamic private-sector entrepreneurial activity. Australia is internationally competitive in financial and insurance services, technologies, and high-value-added manufactured goods and has free-trade agreements with the U.S., China, Japan, South Korea, the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, and the United Kingdom.
