Austria’s economic freedom score is 68.4, making its economy the 33rd freest in the 2024 Index of Economic Freedom. Its rating has decreased by 2.7 points from last year, and Austria is ranked 20th out of 44 countries in the Europe region. The country’s economic freedom score is higher than the world and regional averages. Austria’s economy is considered “moderately free” according to the 2024 Index.

The overall business environment is transparent and competitive. Austria has large services and industrial sectors and a small, highly developed agricultural sector. The country’s high scores for property rights and judicial effectiveness reflect its strong rule of law and maintenance of economic freedom. Institutional strength, however, is not matched by a commitment to limited government. Expansionary public spending has generated budgetary pressure. Ongoing challenges include the assimilation of migrants and the strains on labor markets and public finances caused by an aging population.
