

ALGERIA

A Igeria's economic freedom score is 47.5, making its economy the 160th freest in the 2025 Index of Economic Freedom. Its rating has increased by 3.6 points from last year, and Algeria is ranked 12th out of 14 countries in the Middle East / North Africa region. The country's economic freedom score is lower than the world and regional averages. Algeria's economy continues to be considered "repressed" according to the 2025 Index.

The foundations of economic freedom are not well institutionalized. The judiciary's vulnerability to political interference and corruption undermines sustainable economic development. Despite some progress, fiscal governance still needs to be improved. Reforms to diversify the economic base have been marginally successful. Protectionist regulatory measures have been used to encourage domestic production. Algeria is one of the world's leading natural gas exporters. Oil and gas account for almost 95 percent of export revenues and more than 30 percent of GDP.
