

NORTH MACEDONIA

orth Macedonia's economic freedom score is 63.2, making its economy the 73rd freest in the 2025 Index of Economic Freedom. Its rating has increased by 1.8 points from last year, and North Macedonia is ranked 35th out of 44 countries in the Europe region. The country's economic freedom score is higher than the world average and lower than the regional average. North Macedonia's economy is considered "moderately free" according to the 2025 Index.

Relative openness to global commerce has encouraged private-sector dynamism in North Macedonia. Despite some progress, the development of a more vibrant private sector remains constrained. Corruption continues to be a concern. The inefficient legal framework does not provide effective protection of property rights. Streamlined processes for business formation and operation provide an environment that is fairly conducive to entrepreneurial growth. Progress in reforming the labor market has been limited.

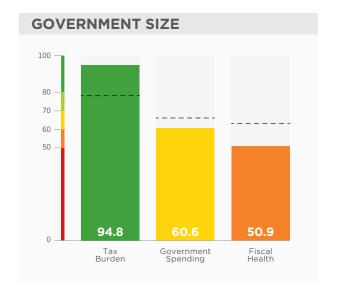

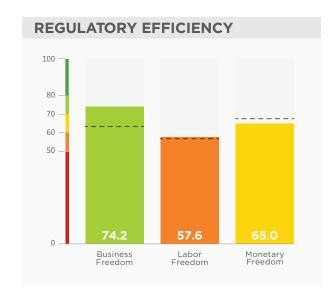

12 ECONOMIC FREEDOMS | NORTH MACEDONIA

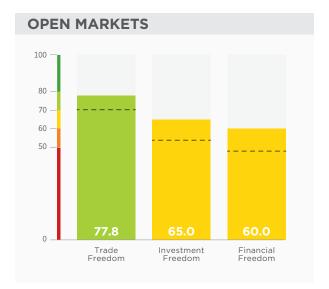

The overall rule of law is relatively well respected in North Macedonia. The country's property rights score is above the world average; its judicial effectiveness score is above the world average; and its government integrity score is below the world average.

The top individual income tax rate is 10 percent, and the top corporate tax rate is 10 percent. The tax burden equals 17.9 percent of GDP. Three-year government spending and budget balance averages are, respectively, 36.3 percent and –5.2 percent of GDP. Public debt amounts to 54.5 percent of GDP.

North Macedonia's overall regulatory environment is relatively well institutionalized but lacks efficiency. The country's business freedom score is above the world average; its labor freedom score is above the world average; and its monetary freedom score is below the world average.

The trade-weighted average tariff rate is 6.1 percent, and nontariff barriers are still in force. A streamlined regulatory framework facilitates investment, but political instability undercuts more vibrant investment inflows. The financial system continues to evolve, and the banking sector is relatively stable.