

How To Borrow From Your Home Without Touching Your Mortgage
Ad LendingTree

All Ovens Are Filthy, Few Know This Oven Cleaning Trick (No Scrubbing)
Ad Dr. Clean

-
-
-
-
-
-

4 WOI San Antonio 3.3K Followers

Suspect fatally shot by apartment resident after attacking maintenance worker identified

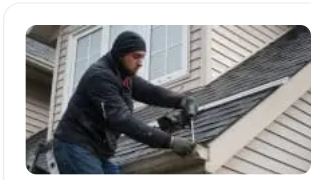

Story by SBG San Antonio | Jessica Warner • 1w • 2 min read

Suspect fatally shot by apartment resident after attacking maintenance worker identified

SAN ANTONIO - A suspect has died after an argument with apartment workers turned to shooting.

On Tuesday, The Bexar County Medical Examiner's Office identified the suspect as 33-year-old Anthony Ortiz, who died as a result of a gunshot wound sustained during an altercation with an apartment resident.

Homebuddy.com
Here's The Average Price for a 6-Hour Gutter...
Ad

RELATED | Suspect critically injured after allegedly attacking maintenance worker, shot by resident

Around 10:50 a.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 15, police were called to the scene of a shooting at an apartment complex near the corner of Goliad Road and Utopia Lane on the South East side.

When police arrived they found Ortiz severely injured with a gunshot wound to the flank. He was rushed to the hospital with critical injuries, but ultimately succumbed to those injuries at Brook Army Medical Center.

According to witnesses at the scene, Ortiz had allegedly been walking around the complex's parking lot, peering into car windows, when he was confronted by the complex manager and two workers.

Ortiz would allegedly attack one of the workers, pushing him to the ground and striking him in the face

When confronted by a resident, he would allegedly produce a knife and a "taser." The resident produce a handgun.

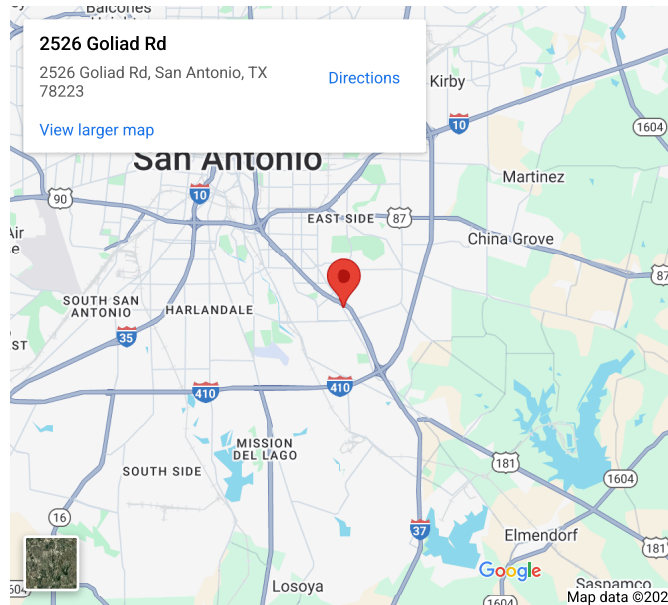

Motley Fool

Nvidia's New Rival (Hint: It's Not AMZN)

Ad

Despite initially attempting to flee, the suspect allegedly stopped and turned around as the resident was in pursuit, and allegedly postured as to stab or stun the resident, prompting them to open fire.

Although initially detained by police, no charges were anticipated against the apartment complex resident. It is unclear if the suspect succumbing to their injuries will change this.

Sponsored Content